The Beecher-Tilton Trial. BROOKLYN, Jan. 27 .- Moulton arrived BROOKLYN, Jan. 27.—Moulton arrived in the City Court promptly this morning and immediately occupied the witness stand. He appeared to have passed a restless night over the sudden news of his mother's death. Beecher and his wife were absent as was also Mrs. Tilton.

Judge Fulierton concluded the redirect axamination by calling witness' atreet examination by calling witness' attention to several points in the cross-examination which have already been published. Mr. Tracey then began a recross-examination, which was stereotyped and wearisome. Near the close, however, Moulton was asked regarding the interview at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, in reference to the publication of his

the interview at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, in reference to the publication of his (Moultou's) statement.

The following questions were propounded and answered:

Tracy—Who was present at that interview's. A. Gen. Butler and yourself.

Tracy—We talked about letters that he necessarily put in that statement, and did I not suggest to you that the letter of Edward K. Beecher to his sister, Mrs. Hocker, and her letter to Beecher, and the letter of Mrs. Bullard had better be left out.

Answer—No, sir; I don't remember your basing said anything of the kind. Mr. Tracey—Did I not tell you that I could not see how any man of honor could publicly print a letter from sister to brother without first obtaining her consent?

"No, I don't believe you said anything of the kind." Witness was then asked regarding the interview next morning. He stated it was held at his house. William C. Kingsley, Frank Carpenter, Mrs. Moulton and Edward K. Beecher were present.

I was for the purpose of finally determining what should be published in Moulton's statement. Mr. Tracy asked witness, if he, Tracy, did not then advise him, witness, about those letters.

Witness said: No, you advised me to publish letters from Beecher to Tilton. Fullerton then questioned the witness in regard to conversation at the Fifth Averaged to conversation at the Fifth Averaged.

regard to conversation at the Fifth Avenue Hotel when Tracy objecten.

The objection was overruled, but the testimony did not differ from that elicited in redirect examination. This concluded Moulton's examination, and he eft the stand.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Martha A. Bradshaw followed Moulton. She is a lady of about 40 years of age, and was somewhat embarrassed at first and spoke low and indistinct. She said she resided on Bradbury street, Brooklyn, and was for 22 years a member of Plymouth Church; knew both Beecher and Mrs. Tilton, and was a frequent visitor at Tilton, and was a frequent visitor at hrs. Tilton's house. She remembered the charges preferred

She remembered the charges preferred by Mr. F. West against Tilton for slan-dering Beecher. Saw charges after they were made. She was asked to be a wit-less in prosecuting the charges. She was then shown the charges, and identi-fied them. Witness next identified the letter to her from Beecher on the subject and her answer to him.

letter to her from Beecher on the subject and her answer to him.

She was then questioned regarding the relations existing at that time between Mr. and Mrs. Tilton. She said they lived happily. Mrs. Tilton was kind, amiable and obliging, and no one knowing her could fail to love her. Mrs. Bradshaw, in her letter to Beecher, states she had been summoned as a witness in the case, and would rather cut her hand off than offend either Beecher and his triends, Mr. and Mrs. Tilton.

her hand off than offend either Beecher and his triends, Mr. and Mrs. Tilton.

In Beccher's reply he calmly abjures Mrs. Bradshaw not to meddle with the matter. In the cross-examination Mrs. Bradshaw said Mrs. Tilton's relations with her husband were cordial up to within two or three years ago. Mrs. Tilton is a very religious woman, and witness believed the differences were caused by Mr. Tilton's regreaucy to his religious belief. A recess was then taken.

Something Worth Heavier.

Something Worth Hearing.

Friday evening next a rich treat will be served to our citizens by Mr. James E. Murdoch, in the way of "Readings," the purport of which is best explained by the following extract:

"The Bishop of St. Andrews (England) wrote a very interesting book to show that Shakespeare was a deep student of the Bible, and to prove that his works bear the impress of a profound knowledge not only of the letter, but of the spirit, of not only of the letter, but of the spirit, of the Word of God. The author tells us, that, as he teaches his children to read and study the Bible, as the Book of God, he also teaches them to read and study Shakespeare as the book of Man.

"From the presentations contained in this work of a learned churchman we may see that the religious convictions of the founder of the English Drama fitted him in an eminent degree for the high station to which his genus exalted him, station to which his genius exalted him, the poet Laureate of the Human Race. Our English Bible, the present version, prepared by the sixty scholars and divines under the authority of King James, although published during the lifetime of our poet, was not generally distributed to the people till after his death. Shakespeare must, therefore, have studied the table Schildurg from one of the transles. speare must, therefore, have studied the Holy Scriptures from one of the transla-tions made during a previous century, and which never became the common property of the English people. "Taking his cue from the bishop's book, some years ago, Mr. Murdoch prepared, some years ago, an. Succeed prepared, and now gives upon fitting occasions, a discourse or lecture, which serves him as a groundwork on which to trace many parallel passages from the Sacred writings and the text of Shakespeare, whereby the Poet's knowledge and use of the Poet's knowledge and use of the Bible is exemplified in a striking and highly impressive manuer.. "One of the most distinguished schol-ars of New England has pronounced this lecture, with its illustrative recitations, as possessing remarkable excellence and well worthy the serious considera-tion of all lovers of the Bible and stu-

have one.

He also stated that one could almost decide the rank of an Englishman by listening to him in conversation. The plebeian talks with ease, but the man of rank always stammers, and the higher his rank the more does he stutter: this is designedly so. If, when you go to Europe, you are exceedingly voluble, you will be set down at once as an imposter. So beware; learn to stutter a little be-
